THE BEST WAY TO STUDY FOR CFA EXAM IN 9 STEPS:

How Is Your CFA Exam Prep So Far?

you live through it without any clear agenda?

you often postpone studying to the next day?

you already studied a bit but do not remember much?

STOP BEING:

❖ DISORGANIZED

❖ UNMOTIVATED

❖ INEFFICIENT

Manage Your Exam Prep

➤ Choose a study plan that easily adapts to what happens daily while still keeping you accountable.

➤ Allow for 300 hours, which is the average study time you need to spend preparing for your level 1 CFA exam if you want to succeed.

➤ Adopt a WEEK-to-WEEK attitude that ensures you stay in control even with some bad study weeks along the way.

Execute Your Study Plan

➤ Keep your motivation simmer. It won't be 100 degrees Celsius all the time but you can't let it cool.

➤ Develop good study habits: weekly apply the strategy of PLAN – STUDY – REVIEW – ASSESS to get yourself going.

➤ Remember: numbers don't lie – if you get too many overdue readings or too few study hours done – your chance to pass naturally decreases.

Learn What You Study

➤ Use various study materials & tools to aid your knowledge retention and get enough practice.

➤ Review after you study to help your learning curve grow. Topic review or final review are fine but may be not enough to overcome your forgetting!

➤ Never stop learning how to learn. GROWTH in this aspect leads straight to success!

All Your Study Weeks: Controlled, Executed, Efficient

3 PILLARS OF YOUR CFA EXAM PREP:

Control

You get all your CFA exam readings assigned to your study weeks. Each week can be edited if needed – preferably at the very start.

Over the week – as you study – you can mark your readings as done or partially done to watch your daily progress. When the week ends – sum it up and see how you did. Is your Chance-to-Pass score up or down compared to your previous week?

Motivation

If you do your weekly readings and summarize each study week – your Chance-to-Pass will grow. To stay motivated to study – you will receive motivational messages with study tips aimed at building your study routine. For the purpose of good performance – you will get study times estimated for each reading. This will naturally tell you how many study hours you need per week (always adjusted for your edition changes).

Knowledge Retention

You can also unlock study tools and review apps we have for you. Ideally, you should use your CFA exam curriculum first and then our resources or, e.g., Schweser study materials to revise and retain required study content. The importance of review cannot be stressed enough. Apply proper review system with us – immune yourself against forgetting, study productively, and learn!
